Organization: Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Galveston-Houston – Cabrini
Center

Week of June 15th

I'm honored that Equal Justice America is helping me spend my 1L summer helping people with Catholic Charities. Let's make sure EJA can continue to assist law students afford to do good work!

Week of July 6th

After the Supreme Court decision regarding DACA a few weeks ago, we all were able to have a small sign of relief. However, the reaction by the government itself shows us this isn't the celebration we were all hoping for. I am honored that Equal Justice America has allowed me to be a part of their fellowship program this summer helping immigrants at Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Galveston-Houston. This experience has showed me truly how much people's lives are affected by people in Washington who they will never meet but are just praying for their empathy. Please help support Equal Justice America so that they can continue to support law students and lawyers help people who need it the most.

Week of July 27th

Summer is ending and so is Equal Justice America's fundraiser for legal fellowships! I have been honored to spend my summer with Catholic Charities in the Cabrini Center for Immigrant Legal Assistance. These times are uncertain for all of us, but no one more than immigrants, and it has been a pleasure to help in my small way. It has also been an privilege to represent South Texas College of Law among all the amazing fellows with #EJA this summer. Please donate to give other law students the ability to summer in public interest or non-profit work.

Week of August 10th

I am so grateful for the opportunity I had to this summer to intern at Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Galveston-Houston this summer. It was wonderful to learn under attorneys and people who are guided by the fact they are in a position to help people who need it. I would not have been able to spend my summer like this without my Equal Justice America Fellowship.
