

Summer 2021 EJA Fellow:

Name: Chakshu Hurria

Law School: Columbia Law School

Organization: Mobilization for Justice

Update 1:

Today marks a week and a half of my summer internship at Mobilization for Justice, Inc.! Mobilization for Justice is a New York-based direct services organization that provides free civil legal services to low-income New Yorkers. This summer, I am working as a law clerk at MFJ's Workplace Justice Project, focusing on workers' rights and re-entry resources for formerly incarcerated people. As you can see, I had the chance to go into the office today (an unexpected perk of technical difficulties) and can only imagine the work environment's energy when most people are here!

This summer, I am also a Fellow at Equal Justice America, an organization committed to delivering civil legal services across the country.

Update 2:

My time at Mobilization for Justice, Inc. as an Equal Justice America Fellow is going quickly – this week, I had back to back calls all three hours on our intake line! I'm learning how to manage a heavy caseload, while participating in the organization's social opportunities and informational sessions.

Update 3:

Another EJA Fellow Update! I've been enjoying my work at Mobilization for Justice, Inc. and have had the chance to interact with clients, do legal research, and even help to file a complaint. I'm learning more about employment law each day and am enjoying direct services work.

Entry 4:

I wrapped up my internship at Mobilization for Justice, Inc.'s Workplace Justice Project last month! This summer, I got to directly interact with clients and work on my specific interest areas of employment discrimination and re-entry for formerly incarcerated people.
