After a great first year at the University of Pennsylvania Carey Law School, I was able to spend the summer doing the type of litigation I came to law school to do with the Clean Air Council!

New massive gas-fired power plants and pipelines that will push us further towards an unlivable planet while putting local communities directly at risk is not what Pennsylvania needs, and it was a privilege to fight these types of projects at the Council this summer.

Working with the Clean Air Council this summer—appealing air permits for gas-fired power plants, working to ensure the Delaware River is safe and healthy for communities and ecosystems, fighting pipelines going through backyards—confirmed that I want to do environmental law.

It is a constant fight to protect the health of PA residents, but I can't wait to continue to use my @pennlaw education to protect my home state from polluting fossil fuel industries that are pushing us further towards a climate catastrophe.
